

Title card: Black background with UW–Madison logo and white text underneath

Text: School of Education University of Wisconsin–Madison

Video begins with School of Education Dean Diana Hess standing at a podium, dressed in her PhD robes, with flags and poinsettias in the background.

Diana Hess: It is my honor to celebrate all of you who are graduating from our School of Education with a bachelor's, master's, or doctoral degree. You have grown as scholars, you have developed skills, and you've learned new ways of engaging with the world around you, and set goals for the future. And you were able to accomplish all of this even as the year has unfolded in ways that none of us could have anticipated. This is a challenging time, but you are well prepared for this moment and we applaud your achievement. At the School of Education, we are all connected by a sense of purpose, by a firm belief that we have the capacity and the responsibility to make people's lives better. You are the embodiment of the Wisconsin Idea, of the conviction that our work should have an impact beyond the boundaries of the classroom. Your efforts in education, in health, and the arts will play a key role in helping our communities, our state, our nation, and our world confront critical challenges both now and in the future. On behalf of the School of Education, let me tell you how proud we are of all of you. Your future is bright. Congratulations.

Ending card: White background with black text and 2020 logo with graduation cap

Text: University of Wisconsin–Madison School of Education 2020 Congratulations